DAY 2

Sunday
8/16/20

Guayaquil to the Galapagos Islands

Never connected to the mainland of South America, the Galapagos Islands were formed entirely through volcanic activity. Eruptions here can be almost annual, with the majority of volcanic activity being in the younger, westerly islands.

Morning Flight

Meet your group at 6:30am (be packed and ready to go!) and head to the airport for your flight to the Galapagos Islands.

Transfer to Your Yacht

You'll be met by your guide at the airport and transferred to the dock where you will board your yacht.

Boat Orientation

You'll be given some information about the yacht, your home for the next week. The crew will show you to your cabin before lunch.

Fausto Llerena Breeding Center

Visit the Charles Darwin Station and Fausto Llerena Breeding Center on Santa Cruz Island, home to the Galapagos giant tortoise breeding program. This is part of the effort to preserve the fragile Galapagos environment and where the famous Lonesome George (the last surviving specimen of his species) lived for decades. Admire a prickly-pear cactus forest, a variety of Darwin's finches, and other land birds. The Darwin Station also works to provide environmental education to communities and schools within the islands and to tourists visiting the Galapagos Islands.

Enjoy some free time to visit the town. There are good shopping opportunities at the local boutiques which sell uniquely designed handcrafts, jewelry, ceramics, T-shirts, and souvenirs. You can also try some food, beer, or ice cream with locals.

Monday
8/17/20

The Galapagos Islands

Located at the center of the archipelago, Bartolome is one of the most frequently visited sites of all the islands. The highest point is only 374 ft above sea level and it is separated from the island of Santiago by Sullivan Bay. The island is an excellent site for snorkeling, filled with the breathtaking volcanic landscapes that make this corner of the world so unique.

Dragon Hill On this two hour hike of Dragon Hill, you can find various species of flora and fauna. Enjoy the pond behind the beach that is often home to flamingos. Along the trail, observe a variety of reptiles, especially land iguanas, which look like dragons because of their claws and spiky crests. Young iguanas are easily preyed upon by predatory birds and snakes; otherwise, they can live up to 60 years of age. Pass extensive vegetation, including a forest of holy stick trees (burseras), whose appearance changes depending on the season. The forest is home to a variety of birds, including mockingbirds, Darwin finches, yellow warblers, and Galapagos doves.

Bartolome Island This afternoon you'll have two landing possibilities: a dock and a beach. The dock, made out of lava and concrete, soon turns into a wooden staircase built to avoid erosion and consists of 372 steps. It takes you to the island's summit, where you'll find Pinnacle Rock. Due to its altitude, the lack of vegetation is immediately noticeable. Pioneer plants are present, and are named because they are the first to establish roots on new ground. They include Tiquilia nesiotica (which is endemic to the island), Chamaesyce (known as sand mat or spurge in English), lava cactus, and Scalesia bushes. The coralline beach next to Pinnacle Rock is a wet landing site from which you are able to snorkel amongst tropical fish and perhaps sea lions and penguins; they rest on the lava of the intertidal zone and sometimes decide to take a dip.

DAY 4

Tuesday
8/18/20

The Galapagos Islands

Also known as Jervis Island in English, Rábida is one of the most diverse in terms of volcanic activity as it lies at the very heart of the archipelago's volcanic origin. It is an island comprised of lava poured out of scoria cones, which are very rich in iron oxide and magnesium (typical of Galapagos basaltic lava); that when exposed and as it rusts, gives the island its astounding, unearthly reddish color. Here, hundreds of sea lions formed a settlement together with a nesting colony of pelicans. Flamingos in the back inhabit a small salty lagoon.

Hike on Rábida Island

This island has an abundance of landscapes and marine life. The trail takes about 90 minutes to walk, and you can also go around the shoreline in a dinghy to spot fur seals, pelicans, blue-footed boobies, and Nazca boobies. This is an excellent place for swimming and snorkeling; you could see white-tipped sharks, rays, sea lions, among many others.

Visit Buccaneers Cove

Behind the beach lie two small flamingo ponds where iguanas sunbathe. The native red and black mangrove can be also seen here. This beach is one of the main sea turtle nesting sites in the Galapagos. A turtle can lay eggs three to four times per season. You will also find the remains of barges that were sunk during World War II, when the United States Navy operated a base on Baltra Island.

Relax on Board

Relax on board your beautiful yacht as you are mesmerized by the crystal clear water surrounding you.

DAY 5

Wednesday
8/19/20

The Galapagos Islands

On the north shore of Santa Cruz Island, accessible only by the sea where four species of mangrove crowd from the shore out into the lagoon, turtles enjoy swimming in the calm waters. They peek their heads above the surface while fish, rays, and small sharks circle below. White-tipped reef sharks can be seen beneath the boat, and sea birds, including pelicans, herons, and egrets, all feed in the cove. This cove has been designated as a "Turtle Sanctuary."

Morning Boat Ride

This morning, board a dinghy to view the turtles in Black Turtle Cove, a designated Turtle Sanctuary.

Lunch

Enjoy lunch on the yacht.

Explore the Highlands

Land on Santa Cruz Island and drive about 45 minutes into the highlands. When you arrive, take a 90-minute walk and admire different kinds of birds, such as tree and ground finches, vermilion flycatchers, paint-billed crakes, yellow warblers, and cattle egrets (usually standing on the shells of tortoises). The journey to the reserve gives you an opportunity to see the contrasts between the ecosystems in the Galapagos. The road goes from the coast through the agricultural zone and straight up to the dense humid forests. Often, Galapagos Giant Tortoises are also seen on the way, wandering through pastures. This spot is a birdwatchers' haven since almost every land bird present on the island lives or migrates here.

DAY 6

Thursday
8/20/20

The Galapagos Islands

Isabela Island is located on the west of the archipelago and has one of the richest marine ecosystems. The island was formed by six volcanoes which originally were six different islands; five of the volcanoes are still active. Each one of them is populated by a different specie of Tortoise that used to live on a separated island. Isabela Island offers not only diverse ecosystems but also some of the most amazing landscapes and natural sights of the archipelago.

Vicente Roca Point

Take a dinghy ride along the coast to observe a great diversity of sea and coastal birds. Cold water currents make themselves known here!

Snorkeling

Enjoy an hour of snorkeling this morning!

Fernandina Island

Walk for about three hours on Fernandina Island. This is one of the most pristine islands in the world, with no introduced species. Espinosa Point is located on the northwestern part of the island, and its flat jet-black lava is a defining feature of the stark and barren landscape. It is also home to the largest colony of endemic marine iguanas. Enjoy an hour of snorkeling in this area as well.

DAY 7

Friday
8/21/20

The Galapagos Islands

Land iguanas are large — more than three feet long — with males weighing up to 30 pounds. They feed mainly on low-growing plants and shrubs, as well as fallen fruits and cactus pads. These succulent plants provide them with the moisture they require during long, dry periods.

Urbina Bay

Urbina Bay is located at the west of Isabela Island and it has a spectacular view of Alcedo volcano. Along the trail, which will take about an hour and a half, you will see land iguanas, mockingbirds, finches, Galapagos hawks, Galapagos martins, and occasionally, giant tortoises. At the beach, you will be able to see the largest marine iguanas on the Galapagos, and those who wish to swim or snorkel can approach flightless cormorants, penguins, sea turtles, and assorted colored fish.

Tagus Cove

Tagus Cove is located on the Northwestern coast of Isabela Island. It is a historical site visited by Charles Darwin in 1835, where graffiti has been carved into the rock walls by visitors over the past centuries; this happened just before the Galapagos National Park was established in 1959-1960. You'll walk for about two hours. Observe countless species: blue-footed booby, brown noddy, terns, flightless cormorant, Galapagos penguins, and marine iguanas depending on the season. Take a 40-minute dinghy ride, and snorkel for an hour. The deep water snorkeling this afternoon is highly recommended!

DAY 8

Saturday
8/22/20

The Galapagos Islands

Santiago Island is known for its volcanic black beach, wonderful landscapes, fur seal grottos, sea lion colonies, herons, hawks, oystercatchers, finches, doves, white-tipped sharks, and sea turtles. You can see the vegetation change from arid to humid climate zones, as well as the effect of intensive foraging by introduced goats, which have been eradicated.

Egas Port This area is a prime place for spotting and observing hunting herons - Great Blue Herons, Yellow-crowned Night Herons, and Lava Herons - as well as oystercatchers. You will enjoy the sight of marine iguanas grazing upon algae beds at low tide, sharing space with crabs and other wading birds. Go for an hour and a half walk, and then you will get to snorkel for an hour as well!

Sullivan Bay The southeastern portion of Santiago Island features extensive lava flows which are believed to have been formed during the last quarter of the 19th century. The area is covered by Pahoehoe lava flows (Pahoehoe in Polynesian language means "easy to walk"); this type of lava is rare in the rest of the world but is common to the volcanoes of the Galapagos Islands and Hawaii. This is the perfect place to see and feel the volcanic origin of the Galapagos. After exploring the lava flow on an hour and a half walk, you can swim and snorkel with playful sea lions off two small coralline beaches.

Farewell Dinner Have a farewell dinner with your group to toast the end of an exceptional adventure.

Adventure Travel Today

At AdventureWomen, we want everyone to understand that our excursions are adventure travel vacations and not "tours." We define "adventure travel" as travel in which one actively participates, as opposed to a "tour," in which one is more or less a passive observer. AdventureWomen designs and organizes vacations all over the world for women who want to experience an active, out of the ordinary vacation, and meet new friends. Most of all, we want our trips to be fun!

good-natured realist and have a sense of humor! Adventure vacations, by nature, require that participants be self-sufficient, flexible, and able to accept situations as they exist, and not just as they would have preferred or expected them to exist. The constraints of scheduled group traveling also necessitate that each of us be understanding of and sensitive to others. Being on time is important, and contributes to the congeniality, success and well-being of both individuals and the group!

In this spirit, the successful adventure traveler should be a
